TRANSit
 TRANSversal key competences for lifelong learning:
 Training teachers in competence based education

About the project

The key competence acquisition by every young person is one of the long term objectives of the updated strategic framework for European cooperation. Most of the EU Member States are formulating and at least beginning to implement policies that move their school systems from being predominantly input led and subject-oriented towards curricula which include competences, cross-curricular activities, active and individual learning, as well as a focus on learning outcomes. Yet, these developments do not necessarily result in significant, widespread changes in practice. TRANSit is a European project that aims to contribute to the enhancement of transversal key competences of students through building teachers capacity for competence oriented education.

Target Groups

- Teachers (in-service, pre-service)
- Teacher trainers
- Educational policy makers

Tools and Services

TRANSit Portal
 (<http://www.transit-project.eu/>)
